Sister Elizabeth and twenty-three other Armenians of Zeitoun, whose terms of three years each have expired, are still detained in prison. CAPTAIN DREYFUS ON TRIAL CHARGED WITH BETRAYING FRENCH MILITARY SECRETS TO ITALY AND GERMANY.

Paris, Dec. 12.-The court-martial appointed to try Captain Albert Dreyfus, accused of selling mili-tary plans and secrets to the Italian and German Governments, has decided that the proceedings shall be secret. The trial began tals morning, Cap-tain breyins went as he entered the prisoner's deck. He has aged greatly in appearance since his arrest, his hair having become gray.

From the beginning of this affair the French Government has been accused by the opposition news papers of attempting to minimize the charges of treason brought against Captain Dreyfus, and these known that the trial is to be held with closed doors. Such a measure appears useless, since the army secrets alleged to have been betrayed to foreign Governments are already known to them, and those Governments could learn nothing more from the revelations which may be made before the courtmartial. The anti-Ministerial press in France will pretend that a secret trial supports its former suppretend that a secret trial supports its former suppositions as to the desire of the Government to whitewash Captain Dreyfus, under the pressure brought upon it by the Rothschilds and other influential personages of the Hebrew faith, who were anxious to save one of their coreligiousses. At any rate, this feature of the trial may exercise some influence upon the political situation in France, where particult feelings have been recently excited by discussions relative to international military spies, and by reports published in the press that General Mercler, Minister of War, hed said that Captain Dreyfus was arrested in October only upon sufficient evidence of his treation, and the belonged to the 25th Artillery Regiment, but had been assigned to an office in the bureau of the General Staff. The court-martial is presided over by General Maurel, assisted by alx officers not below the rank of captain. The charges will be presented by Commandant Brisset as Government prosecutor, and M. Demayne, one of the best-mown lawyers in France, will defend Captain Dreyfus, Ail sorts of stories have been published in regard to the nature of the treasonable acts alleged to have been committed by Captain Dreyfus, and to the punishment he may incur, which may be either death or imprisonment, but nothing certain can be known until the end of this important trial.

AS TO SILVER-TOPPED CANES.

From The Boston Herald. From The Borton Hera'd.

The silver-topped canes and umbrellas are disagreeable to handle in cold days, the metal then agreeable to handle in cold days, the metal then striking an key pang through the stoutest glove; therefore, the idea of making a fittle knitted covering for the knob is not half a bad one, though it is an old forgy's. A man with no longer a desire to be thought young or smart was seen recently carrying a walking slick, whose elaborate gold handle rejoleed in a knit cap of this description. Whether it was worn by the stick to save its beautiful head or because the old gentleman hated beautiful head or because the old gentleman hated beautiful head or because the old gentleman hated to feel the shivering metal in his hand could not be determined, but the sight of it was suggestive.

SPECULATORS WHO CONSULT MEDIUMS. From The Chicago Tribune.

Prom The Chicago Tribune.

Hoard of Trade men are pretty hard-headed individuals who, as a rue, concern themselves too much with visible supplies and other tangible things to think much about invisible spirits. Most people would therefore be surprised if they knew what a large number of speculators patronize clairvoyants, mediums, astrologers and fortune-tellers. Several prominent and successful dealers never fail, it is said, to consult a medium before going on the board, and their almost uniform good lack in their trades is sufficient to justify the practice, to themselves at least.

One medium who has been pering into the future here for twenty years at so much per peer, and the bulk of whose patronage, from the standards on the board, has amassed a snug fortune for herself and lives in style on a fashionable street on the West Side.

This story is told by one man, one of her regular visitors, who, on the strength of alarming conditions in Europe and the prospect of war, went into a combination which made heavy parchases of pork. They had captured most of that commodity in sight. On the morning of the day on which the final squeeze was to be given to the shorts one of the leading spirits in the enterprise celled on this medium. The medium's familiar is supposed to he the inmontal part of an Indian chief who used to roam all over Chicago before Chicago was here. On this occasion he seemed to be in a good deed of trouble, or the medium did, which was of course the same thing, and after a number of oracular afterances, for the most part unintelligible, she said, peaking with the voice of the departed chief:

"Tigh! Meat no good, greasy, let it go."

This was repeated several times, and without cluedating his remark in any way the spirit of the red man departed. The medium, who like all true mediums was unable to remember out of a trance anything she had said in it, could know he first favorable opportunity. The securitor thought about it the more by inclined to the helief that the old chief had reference to hit

DRUGGISTS TO HAVE A SMELLING CONTEST From The Chicago Tribune,

In Missouri druggists are preparing to held a big smelling contest at the annual meeting of the State Pharmaceuteai Association next spring. It will probably be the first contest of the sort ever held, though druggists have always recognized the value of a well-trained proboscis is determining the nature of chemicals. Chicago pharmacists are both interested and amused over the prospects for a smelling ontest. There are few drugs, common or rare, that are absolutely odoriess, and the test of smell is a recognized one among all pharmacists.

"A druggist must have a good nose," said one. The odor of drugs in part of the test in all pharmaceutical colleges. A druggist will test drugs first by his nose, then by sight, then by taste, then he will experiment in chemical reactions. A great many rare drugs, like cumarin, can be determined by odor.
